

Matt Bird, Relationology

Matt Bird is the CEO of Relationology International helping leaders and their businesses build profitable relationships.

Relationology Mastermind Groups, Academy Courses and Keynote Speeches are renowned for creating lasting impact and change. Clients have included the US Federal Reserve Bank, Home Office, PwC International, Volkswagen and Godiva Chocolate.

Matt has personally spoken to more than 1 million people in 40 countries, authored 10 books, writes for The Times newspaper and is a frequent media broadcaster.

He spends time every day investing in relationships and a magazine reported, ‘When Malcolm Gladwell sat at his typewriter and wrote the chapter on connectors in The Tipping Point, he must have just finished a slap-up lunch with Matt Bird.’

Matt is also the founder of Cinnamon Network International an NGO caring for people experiencing isolation and building relational capital in communities. He has received commendations from successive British Prime Ministers and chaired the 10 Downing Street ‘Community Advisory Group’.

He lives in Wimbledon, London with his wife Esther and their three teenage children.